The UN World Water Development Report (WWDR) is released each year around World Water Day.
- UN-Water is the convener for World Water Day and selects the theme for each year in consultation with UN organizations that share an interest in that year's focus.
- The first World Water Day, designated by the United Nations, was in 1993.

UN World Water Development Report 2022

- The report was launched at the opening ceremony of the 9th World Water Forum in Dakar, Senegal.
- UN World Water Development Report 2022: Key Points
- The report states that groundwater, which accounts for 99 per cent of all liquid freshwater, has the potential to provide societies with tremendous social, economic, and environmental benefits and opportunities.

- The groundwater already provides almost half of the total water used for domestic purposes including drinking water. The water resource has though been mismanaged, undervalued, and abused.
- The report describes groundwater to be central to the fight against poverty and achieving food and water security and even the creation of jobs and socio-economic development.
- The report notes that the present dependence on groundwater will only increase due to increasing water demand by all sectors and increasing disruption in rainfall patterns.
- The report further highlights the opportunities and challenges associated with the management of groundwater across the world.
- It also aims to establish a clear understanding regarding the role of groundwater in daily life and opportunities for optimizing its use to ensure the long-term sustainability of the water resource.
- The report states that it all starts with making the invisible visible and the action would require strong and concerted efforts to manage and use it sustainably.
