Moving Towards Tri-service System, Officials Promote Unity Among Defence Forces

- As part of the Indian defence forces plan to build an Integrated Theatre Command system, it has taken several steps to promote teamwork and collaboration to increase unity among forces of the Navy, Army, and Air Force.
- Earlier in May, it was announced that all three defence services, the Air Force, Navy and the Army, would come forward for all military exercises in the future. The initiative was under the 'Theatre Command System', which aims to bring synergistic coordination between the three branches of the armed forces.
- In addition to this, officers from different forces will be assigned to assist the personal staff of the three service chiefs with their official duties. This will help promote better cooperation between the services.
